

Bridging Insights Palestine (BI-Pal)

Towards an evidence-based conflict resolution framework for a just and agreed upon solution to the Palestinian issue

Bridging Insights (BI-Pal)
What we are achieving	• BI-Pal seeks to take the first critical steps in building the ecosystem that addresses the Palestinian context, • BI-Pal seeks to identify, engage and mobilize a significant network of diverse leaders, • BI-Pal aims to contribute to the enabling of a political process towards a solution based on core values of dignity, freedom, equality, justice and security for all. • BI-Pal aims to find solutions to problems and challenges related to the context.
Values	Pluralism, justice, participation, integrity, innovation
Strategic Pillars	1) The Evidence-Based Research and 2) The Engagement, Outreach and Collaboration Programs
Methodology	Adopting a ‘theory and practice’ methodology
Approach	1) Learning the insights of a comparative analysis study (Why It Worked¹) of areas of conflict to understand the factors that helped parties in conflict areas engage in a political process. (This study was devised and funded by Bridging Insights, Inc. and designed and led by Harvard Kennedy School’s Negotiation and Conflict Resolution Collaboratory). 2) Applying a contextualized toolkit for conflict resolution that is based on evidence and insights from the comparative analysis study to diagnose gaps and challenges and allow for interventions. 3) Engaging the Palestinian community through both top-down and bottom-up methods. 4) Creating safe spaces where pluralism is harnessed for constructive change. 5) Including the perspectives and insights of relevant partners and stakeholders.

Why this matters	• There is a need for new approaches to conflict resolution that is driven and owned by relevant stakeholders. • The dual approach (top-down and bottom-up) ensures the inclusion of perspectives from all societal levels, fosters meaningful dialogue and cultivates a sense of agency and ownership. • These efforts build the foundations for equitable socio-political representation, intergenerational and cross-geographical cohesion, and stronger regional and international partnerships. • International conflicts that were protracted and seemed to have reached a stalemate were resolved and that gives hope to the Palestinians. • Research shows that a sustainable political process requires a society that is more cohesive, more resilient, and better able to organize, manage internal tensions, engage differences constructively, and respond collectively when political openings emerge. • Building on insights from studying successful political processes of areas where conflicts were resolved, it is evident that internal challenges within Palestine need to be addressed. • Creating hope
What type of activities does BI-PAL do	• BI-Pal works through its two pillars to generate knowledge and identify and engage the relevant stakeholders. • BI-Pal focuses on advancing young leaders, strengthening internal cohesion, endorsing a culture of dialogue, acceptance of the other, rebuilding trust, protecting civic space, and creating inclusive forms of community participation.
